

Announcement

The Institute for National and International Security - INIS as the leading scientific and academic society in Europe, as a leader in the field of security science with eminent experts consisting of 87 prominent professors from 32 countries in the field of security, intelligence, geopolitics, international relations and counterterrorism.

Prominent member of the INIS Institute for National and International Security Prof. Dr. Yiorghos Leventis, Leading Security Expert, Executive Director of the International Security Forum and Professor from Cyprus visited the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Serbia on the first day of visit. They were hosted by State Secretary Nemanja Starovic in a pleasant atmosphere, where they exchanged views on current geopolitical topics and future activities.

On 8 June, Prof. Dr. Yiorghos Leventis gave a lecture at the Institute on "Cyprus, the unsinkable aircraft carrier in the Eastern Mediterranean", and presented a comprehensive analysis of the unique status and role of British military bases and surveillance installations on the island.

The lecture and discussion were also attended by H.E. Mr Demetrios Theophylactou, Ambassador of Cyprus, Ms Katerina Rapti, Deputy Head of Mission and First Counsellor, Embassy of Greece, Ms Marija Cukanovic Karavidic, Head of the Higher Education Analysis and Development Group, Higher Education Sector of the Ministry of Education, Science and Technological Development of Republic Serbia and other guests.

After the lecture, the eminent guests visited the exhibition in the premises of the Institute entitled "Adventure in the Balkans in 1915".

The Institute continues its activities of writing history in the form of promoting the concept of "scientific diplomacy" and strengthening relations with partners.

You INIS.