

Member of the Institute for National and International Security – INIS

Ephraim Isaac is an Ethiopian scholar of ancient Ethiopian Semitic languages and African and Ethiopian civilizations. He is director of the Institute for Semitic Studies at Princeton University and chairman of the board of the Ethiopian Center for Peace and Development. He was the first professor of African-American studies at Harvard University.

<https://intelligence-security.rs/senior-research-fellows/ephraim-isaac/>

Represents

Harvard University Graduate School of Arts and Sciences has chosen me as one of the “Alumni who Made a Difference”. The announcement states: “GSAS AT 150: ALUMNI WHO MADE A DIFFERENCE”: “To mark the school’s 150th anniversary, the summer 2022 and winter 2023 issues of Colloquy will recognize GSAS graduate, past and present, whose work has had an outstanding influence on the world..”

HARVARD UNIVERSITY
The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences

